Cease-fire fails to stop fighting in Lebanon

BEIRUT (AP) — The Lebanese army battled snipers in the central mountains and Beirut suburbs Monday despite a cease-fire in the three-week-old renewal of the civil war. Two more Lebanese soldiers were reported killed.

Prime Minister Shafik Wazzan, a Sunni Moslem, and his 10-man Cabinet bowed to the demands of the Syrians and Druse leader Walid Jumblatt and resigned to pave the way for a national unity government.

President Amin Gemayel, a Christian, said he asked the 58-year-old prime minister to stay on "until the features of the new era crystallize, and arrangements to usher it in are completed."

The cease-fire agreement mediated by Saudi Arabia and the United States went into effect at 6 a.m. (midnight Sunday EDT), and the army said it was holding generally in the central mountains southeast of Beirut where the army battled Druse and Palestinian militiamen for three weeks for control of the strategic hilltop town of Souk el-Gharb.

But army sources said three militiamen tried to infiltrate Souk el-Gharb about 2½ hours after the cease-fire. Druse snipers killed two soldiers at Kaifoun, less than a mile away, and the troops in Kaifoun fired automatic rifles and .30-caliber machine guns for at least 30 minutes at the snipers 30 yards away.

The government's Radio Beirut reported after nightfall that army positions in the mountain village of Kabr Chmoun were under fire from rocket-propelled grenades and automatic rifles, but the government troops were not shooting back.

However, the radio reported that army troops fired at snipers shooting at them from Shiite Moslem neighborhoods in the Beirut suburbs and that about 20 military vehicles were spotted at sunset headed toward the Druse mountain garrison of Baissour.

In Souk el-Gharb, however, Lebanese soldiers milled about the ruined streets, eating grapes, talking with each other and raising clenched fists in the victory sign.

Lt. Pierre Salem, whose platoon held the forward position in Kaifoun through more than a week of heavy fighting, said his men were "happy, very happy" when they received word of the cease-fire. "Now, some rest," he said.

Streets in Beirut were jammed with cars and pedestrians as residents took advantage of the truce to shop, visit friends or stroll. However, the government announced the 8 p.m.-to-dawn curfew would continue for the time being. Soldiers at checkpoints were turning back people who tried to return to homes in the battle area.

Reagan proposes curb on missiles

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Declaring "a nuclear war cannot be won and must never be fought," President Reagan offered Monday to make new proposals to limit medium-range nuclear weapons in Europe, and challenged the Soviet Union to make similar concessions.

Reagan told the U.N. General Assembly that if the Soviets make concessions of their own, the United States will consider a new ceiling on the number of U.S. missiles in Europe, reductions in planned deployment of the new Pershing 2 and cruise missiles and companion curbs on numbers of aircraft.

"The door to an agreement is open," Reagan said. "It is time for the Soviet Union to walk through it."

Soviet Ambassador Oleg Troyanovsky sat quietly as Reagan denounced the Kremlin's version of the downing of a Korean airliner as "a timely reminder of just how different the Soviets' concept of truth and international cooperation is from that of the rest of the world."

Reagan was warmly applauded by most U.N. delegations, even though he accused member nations from straying from the "original ideals" of the world body when it was founded in 1945.

The first Soviet response to Reagan's arms control proposals was that they were nothing new. Richard Ovinikov, one of Soviet U.N. delegates, called them a cover-up for "a sugar-coated deception."

Reagan said his proposals were intended to reply to concerns raised by the Soviets, but he gave no missile or aircraft numbers. He said details would be left to arms negotiators in Geneva, Switzerland.

But the president said if the Soviets agreed to reduce and put global limits on its SS-20 medium-range missiles already installed, the United States no longer would insist on matching the Soviet ceiling with deployment of U.S. missiles in Europe.

Reagan said the United States will consider a Soviet demand that any agreement on medium-range weapons also include limits on aircraft as well as missiles.

He also said that if there is agreement on missile reductions, the United States would be prepared to reduce the number of Pershing 2 and ground-launched cruise missiles it plans to deploy on West European soil starting in December.

NATO plans to deploy 108 Pershings and 464 cruise missiles in Europe to match the 351 Soviet SS-20s already deployed. Each of the U.S. missiles has a single warhead, while the SS-20s carry three warheads.

A senior administration official, speaking anonymously, said barring an agreement with the Soviets, NATO would go ahead with its scheduled deployment of U.S. missiles by year's end. But he said the administration hoped to continue negotiations with the Soviets and would consider dismantling U.S. missiles later on.

"I believe that if governments are determined to deter and prevent war, there will not be war," Reagan said.

Simon: Losing endorsement won't matter

By Karen Torry
Staff Writer

U.S. Rep. Paul Simon, who is seeking the Democratic nomination for U.S. Senate, said Monday he doesn't think losing the endorsement of the 22nd District Democratic State Committeeman will cost him any votes in the district Simon has represented since 1974.

"My instinct is that it doesn't change any votes down our way," Simon said Monday in a telephone interview from Chicago.

Committeeman James Holloway, who has said he will support State Sen. Philip Rock, chairman of the state Democratic Central Committee, agreed that his endorsement will have little influence on 22nd District voters.

Holloway's endorsement of Rock had been expected, Simon said.

"It was not that much of a surprise," he said. "Sometimes when people work for other people, they have to do things they'd sooner not do."

Simon said he was encouraged by endorsements of his Senate candidacy by 10 Cook County Democratic Party officials last week and by polls which he said indicate he has a "substantial lead" in the race for the Democratic nomination.

One straw vote taken in Chicago's 44th ward gave Simon 159 votes among 200 sample ballots distributed.

Simon and Rock will face state Comptroller Roland Burris and Chicago attorney Alex Seith in the Democratic primary election, which will be held in March.

The state Democratic Central Committee will meet Nov. 18.

Gray challenges Buzbee; makes bid for house seat

By John Schrag
Staff Writer

Kenny Gray says it's time for a "revival" in Southern Illinois, and he wants to lead it - from the U.S. House of Representatives.

Gray, who served as Southern Illinois' congressman from 1955 to 1975, announced Monday that he will seek the Democratic nomination for the House seat that will be vacated by Paul Simon, who succeeded Gray 10 years ago and is now running for the U.S. Senate. State Sen. Kenneth Buzbee, D-58th District, is the only other announced candidate seeking the nomination for Simon's seat.

Gray's announcement was made before a crowd of about 100 well-wishers and reporters who packed West Frankfort city council chambers.

A West Frankfort native who has lived in Florida for the past several years, Gray said he wants to lead the people of Southern Illinois in a "revival of spirit" and a "revival of jobs."

He told the crowd that, if elected, he will work for better housing, more highways and improved health care for Southern Illinois.

Referring to Buzbee as a "good state Senator," Gray said he encouraged Buzbee to seek the House seat 10 years ago when he decided not to seek an 11th term on Capitol Hill.

"We need him in state Senate," Gray told reporters, "and that's where he should stay."

Although he did not criticize Buzbee, Gray made no secret his displeasure with the Southern Illinoisan, which recently ran editorials critical of Gray.

Gray, an influential member of the House Public Works Committee during his tenure on Capitol Hill, disputed the paper's charge that he promoted "pork barrel" projects for Southern Illinois at the expense of the nation's economy. He said that as a congressman he helped bring physical improvements and social services to Southern Illinois.

"Don't call water projects and hospitals pork barrel," he said. "It's not pork barrel. It's us having a decent way of life for our people and we want more of it."

The 58-year-old Gray is credited with bringing several large government projects to Southern Illinois, including the Devil's Kitchen dam, the Marion Penitentiary, Carbondale's Federal Building and Interstates 57 and 64. He vowed to continue to get federal projects for the area if he is elected again.

"As long as they are taking money from your pockets and taking it to Washington," he said, "I am going to be fighting like hell to get it back."

Speaking about other topics, Gray said that acid rain is a "bogus" issue and a "red herring." He said that Southern Illinois has not been affected by acid rain but nonetheless promotes "a national program of putting scrubbers on every coal-burning facility in the country" to reduce the sulfur dioxide particles that are believed to cause acid precipitation.

Cardinal wins peace award ...

CHICAGO (AP) — The Roman Catholic Archdiocese of Chicago is "pleased and proud" that Cardinal Joseph Bernardin, a leading critic of the nuclear arms race, has won the Albert Einstein Peace Prize, a spokesman said Monday.

The Rev. John C. Hergenrother, chancellor of the 2.3 million-member archdiocese that is the largest in the United States, said Monday that all area Catholics are happy that the efforts of the cardinal, working through the National Conference of Catholic Bishops, have been recognized by the Chicago-based Albert Einstein Peace Prize Foundation.

"The prize awarded to Cardinal Bernardin affirms the widespread support for a peaceful planet 'unthreatened by nuclear destruction,' he said.

Bernardin was named winner of the international peace prize and its $50,000 cash award in Washington Monday.

He will accept the prize Nov. 9 in Washington, and the foundation said he will "deliver a major address on the nuclear issue, call for specific action by world citizenry" and reveal "the role each individual can play in furthering the goals of the pastoral letter."

The Chicago archbishop served as chairman of a special committee of prelates that drafted "The Challenge of Peace: God's Promise and Our Response," a landmark pastoral letter on the questions of morality raised by nuclear arms.

The letter condemns the arms race and raises questions about the wisdom and morality of U.S. military policies.

Bernardin is the first religious figure to be chosen an Einstein laureate, an honor established in 1979 to reward "those persons who best contribute to world peace."

In an interview Sunday in Italy, where he is vacationing en route to Rome for the opening Thursday of a month-long World Synod of Bishops, Bernardin said he will give the $50,000 to the National Conference of Bishops for dissemination of the pastoral letter.

Parr seeks state Senate seat

By Dave Saelens
Staff Writer

Paul "F. L." Parr of Lick Creek announced Monday he will seek the Democratic nomination for the Illinois Senate seat for the 53rd Legislative District.

Parr, a Union County farmer, will seek the vacated seat of Democratic State Sen. Kenneth Buzbee, who is running for Congress.

Parr is presently the Illinois District 22 Chairman for a national farmers organization and is a member of the Executive Board of the Illinois Farm Alliance. He said his experience includes drafting legislation and volunteer lobbying in Springfield and Washington, D.C., as well as being elected to state-wide committees and offices in citizens' groups and farm organizations.

"As a farm leader and citizen working with others, I have helped make significant and positive changes that have helped people," Parr said. "I now strongly believe I can be most productive and beneficial to the region by getting directly involved in the political process."

At a press conference held in the Southern Illinois Airport, Parr said there are three issues which "touch all of us and need immediate attention."

The present flat income tax structure must be examined, he said, and a graduated income tax system based on the ability to pay must be investigated.

Parr also said the Illinois Commerce Commission needs to be changed from an appointed to an elected body "so it will be more responsive to the people."

Finally, Parr said the state must pay its constitutionally mandated share of funding for education instead of the present 39 percent.

"These and other problems facing us can be solved if we apply ourselves to them," he said. "I have always worked with people and I know we can put together a farmer, consumer and labor coalition which will make a difference in Springfield."

Pay raises are report topic

Salary increases for fiscal year 1984 will be discussed at a general meeting for all SIU-C administrative and professional staff at 3 p.m. Wednesday in the Mississippi Room of the Student Center.

State appropriated funds for salary increases equaled $296,024 for administrative and professional staff, which included an average increase of 4.75 percent. The salary report will be given by Tom Williams, chairman of the Administrative and Professional Staff Council's Welfare Committee.

The administrative and professional staff received salary increases from money that was kept separate from faculty salary increases.

Goldwater supports resolution

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., one of the first members of Congress to urge withdrawal of U.S. Marines from Lebanon, threw his support Monday behind a resolution that would allow them to remain for 18 months.

After the first Marine deaths, Goldwater said the troops should be withdrawn immediately.

GPSC to discuss energy audit

By John Stewart
Staff Writer

The Graduate and Professional Student Council will meet at 7 p.m. Wednesday in the Mississippi room of the Student Center to consider a resolution to bring in a consulting firm to do an energy use audit.

The energy audit resolution supports and commends the administration's concern of saving money on energy usage in addition to pledging to support any future recommendations from the audit.

The council will discuss approval of speakers outside the north end of the Student Center adjacent to Faner Hall. The Undergraduate Student Organization passed a resolution advocating their removal to the Free Forum area.

Sam McVey, director of the Health Service, will update the GPSC on the recent changes in health service charge policies. Starting this summer a $3 per visit charge, in addition to the $60 a semester Health Service fee was implemented.

In the past the GPSC has been concerned that a per-visit user fee would decrease in student usage of the health service, according to Ann Greeley, GPSC president. McVey will also speak to the council about the new health hotline, the Health Service refund policy, and the emergency service charge, Greeley said.

The GPSC is expected to pass a constitutional amendment which would require the Graduate Council (the graduate school's faculty-student policy making board) representatives to be removed for non-attendance of meetings.

Barbara Hansen, dean of the Graduate School, will speak on the current projects and future plans of the Graduate School. This will be her third appearance before the GPSC since becoming dean last spring.

The council will also discuss the academic and non-academic priorities responses recently released by the SIU-C administration. Within the academic priorities report were recommendations for the elimination and reduction of several Master's and Ph.D. degree programs.

Gray told reporters he supports bilateral arms negotiations, such as the nuclear freeze passed by the House this year, but does not believe in unilateral action.

As to the presence of U.S. military personnel in Central America, Gray said he believes that sometimes it is necessary to "keep pressure" in areas where the interest of the United States is being threatened, but he hastened to add that "you get out as quick as you can."

State Sen. Gene Johns, 59th District, was one of several local Democrats on hand for the event. Johns said he "unequivocally" and "very happily" is endorsing Gray, who he said is very popular in his district.

State Representative Jim

Rhea, D-117th District, was also on hand, but declined to endorse either Buzbee or Gray. Simon has also said he will stay out of the contest for now.

After suffering a heart attack in 1972, Gray stepped out of politics because of high blood pressure. He said a new medication has enabled him to return to a more vigorous schedule.

Reagan trip to Manila slaps freedom's face

THOUSANDS OF PEOPLE are taking to the streets in Manila to protest the 18-year dictatorship of President Ferdinand Marcos. The Filipino army is retaliating with water cannon and rifle fire. Eleven protesters were killed and 247 wounded in demonstrations outside of the presidential palace. Protesters are burning effigies of U.S. representatives outside the U.S. embassy.

This is the prevailing atmosphere in Manila. President Reagan intends to visit the Philippines in November. The trip is certain to spark further bloodshed and anti-U.S. sentiment in the Philippines.

THE PHILIPPINES is a country of contradictions. Unequaled squalor exists side-by-side with unmeasured splendor. The Philippines enjoys Western civilization and Oriental culture. It maintains strategic U.S. bases, enjoys the support of the U.S. government — yet is one of the most undemocratic countries in the world.

Benigno Aquino, the Filipino opposition leader who was murdered upon his return to that country last month, viewed Marcos' rule as an injustice — an injustice he gave his life to correct. Now he is a martyr for freedom in the Philippines — and United States has once again become a dirty word in the struggle for freedom.

IS THE UNITED STATES based on the premise that all men have the right to choose their leaders in free elections? Or is it a nation of global strongmen who embrace dictators for military gain with no thought of the plight of the people?

The crowds in the streets in Manila are not communist radicals calling for an overthrow of the government. They are businessmen, housewives and students fighting for a voice in their country's government — fighting for freedom.

FOR PRESIDENT REAGAN to travel to Manila and stand waving side by side with Marcos at the airport — virtually on the spot where Aquino was murdered — would inevitably further solidify the people of the Philippines against the United States. It could also put our president in danger of a fate similar to that of Aquino.

President Reagan should cancel his trip to Manila and join in the call for free elections in the Philippines and an end to Marcos' regime. A presidential visit would only weaken U.S. influence in the area and drag the prestige of the United States through a pool of martyr's blood. The United States should demonstrate that it stands with people who want to be free and not with dictators.

Gays' abstinence won't bring God's favor—repentance will Must gays abstain to gain God's favor? As much as I despise the sin of homosexuality (as well as other sin), I must say that abstinence from any sin is not what gains God's favor.

"But God demonstrates His own love toward us, in that while we were yet sinners, Christ died for us" (Romans 5:8).

It is fortunate for all of us that God loves us even in the midst of our sinfulness. If that were not true, Christ would not have died on our behalf, and Christianity would not exist.

What is required to benefit from His act of true love on the cross is (again) not abstinence from sin. Rather, He requires faithful repentance.

"As many as received Him, to them He gave the right to become children of God, even to those who believe in His name" (John 1:12). "Repent, therefore, and return (to God), that your sins may be wiped away, in order that times of refreshing may come from the presence of the Lord" (Acts 3:19).

This is not to belittle the importance of obedience to God. "Therefore do not let sin reign in your mortal body that you should obey its lusts, and do not go on presenting the members of your body to sin as instruments of unrighteousness; but present yourself to God as those alive from the dead, and your members as instruments of righteousness to God" (Romans 6:12-13).

But take note of the order of things: "For by grace you have been saved through faith ... not as a result of works, that no one should boast. For we are His workmanship, created in Christ Jesus for good works, which God prepared beforehand, that we should walk in them" (Ephesians 2:8-10). Our "good works" are the result — not the means — of our salvation.

Gays, really, are no better nor worse than the rest of us. "For all have sinned and fall short of the glory of God" (Romans 3:23). We're all in the same boat. We all need to turn to Jesus Christ as our savior (see Acts 4:12).

But a sincere heart — a truly repentant heart — won't stop there. In God's holy hand it will become a changed heart (2 Corinthians 5:17).

"I urge you therefore, brethren, by the mercies of God, to present your bodies a living and holy sacrifice, acceptable to God, which is your spiritual service of worship. And do not be conformed to this world, but be transformed by the renewing of your mind, that you may prove what the will of God is, that which is good and acceptable and perfect" (Romans 12:1-2). — Daniel Faust, Carbondale.

Writer missed a lot of E-Night fares

My, my, my, Miss Meyers, I can only wonder how anyone can find more entertainment in food than they can in a whole evening of E-Night events. Just how entertaining was it to know where the "junk food delights" and "Spirit Cake" star's were located? I could just feel the butterflies in your stomach as you waited for your $1.50 Mexican dinner, or was it the fact you had just spent a half hour watching other people "gorge themselves with sugary delectables" and your stomach wanted some "entertainment" itself? I can't really imagine a bowl of ice cream putting on a "grand finale."

I do know you couldn't be everywhere at the same time, but if the entertainment was so low, how come you spent all your time at five events out of the 35-plus on the agenda?

I went to E-Night to see Fool's Face. Unlike our entertainment scout, Miss Meyers, I did have a previous chance to see them. They had a five-man band then, but because of a strenuous schedule a member had dropped out. I again was more happy that I had planned my night around seeing them. The band was greeted by about 35 people paying attention and 20 or so marching through exits that should have been closed during the performance. Their songs were all originals in the first set. The band came back to another small crowd and in an attempt to bring some kind of familiarity to the crowd they played three old Beatles hits. These were followed by 13 more original songs.

The band was all smiles. They even smiled and apologized for the bad acoustics, which was obviously the SPC's fault for having the concert in that overgrown closet.

As far as Miss Meyer's interpretation of musical styles go, we would have to go back at least 10 years to find uses of terms like "kiddie rock" and "bubble gum" sound which applied to bands like Kiss and, more recently, Journey. Your band review lacks any "depth" because of your overuse of vague, meaningless clichés on totally original songs that have a lot to say.

The point is that there was a lot to see and on E-Night you missed a lot of it. You should have watched more than what you ate. — Thomas J. Sherwin, Junior, Cinema.

World Law muddled on jetliner shootings

THE DOWNING of the Korean passenger plane by the Soviet Union brings to mind similar incidents in which the international community failed to establish just, legal solutions to future applicable cases.

This failure is due to two factors. First, technological developments in aviation have promoted vagueness in the circumstances of civilian aircraft shootings, in addition to a traditional absence of evidence other than descriptions and estimates provided by the governments involved.

Second, the West has shown a chronic judicial bias in the practice of international law when the government in suspicion happened to be pro-West. Israel has been a party in two well-known plane shooting incidents. In 1955, Bulgaria shot down an El Al passenger plane, and in 1973, Israel knocked down a Libyan passenger aircraft over the Sinai desert.

WESTERN judicial thought leaned toward backing Israel on both instances. Following the Korean airliner incident, though, we hear nothing but anti-Soviet propaganda. The situation is thus devoid of any claims of international judicial practice.

Western judicial advocates defended Israel in 1955 with the following tenet of international law as prescribed by the International Civil Aviation Organization:

Jack Prasai
Staff Writer

"In accordance to general rules of international law, any state is entitled to defend by force its national sovereignty in sea or air on condition that it should not infringe upon the basic humanitarian considerations involved and should also abstain from arbitrary application of force in such a procedure especially as it is connected with the reality and firmness of the supposed threat."

THIS BASIC tenet of ICAO, on the other hand, has not been cited against the Soviets in the recent Korean case.

Western and international jurisprudence, in concurrence with the Hague and ICAO, depends on two principle clauses applicable to aircraft which trespass on aerial frontiers of alien states and justification for those states to shoot them down.

The first principle is that of last resort, in which a state is permitted to apply force for the purpose of defending its legal rights within its frontiers and on the condition that other less extreme procedures have failed. The second principle — "proportionality" — relies on estimation of the volume of threat to the security of the state whose aerial frontiers are violated. This principle takes into account the question of whether the military security needs of the state whose airspace is violated have weight sufficient to justify the force used.

IN THE EL AL shooting in Bulgaria, the West held that the first principle could not be applied because of lack of proof beyond testimony of the aggressor state. But the West applied the second principle — arguing that, since relations between Bulgaria and Israel were more than fraternal during this incident period, Bulgaria's action was unjustified and the nation had to bear responsibility.

In the Libyan case, the West argued at the World Court in Hague that, since the Israelis shot down the Libyan aircraft over an Israeli military base and nearby atomic reactor, and since relations between the two parties were hostile, Israel's actions were justifiable. Hence Israel's responsibility was denied.

THIS DECISION, if applied to the Korean case by the same argument-seekers, would hold the Soviet action to be worthy and legal. But Western legal authorities are silent on this point. Why?

Also, in accordance with the last resort principle, the Soviets had warned the Korean pilots through dual means — the Korean plane was intercepted by a Soviet jet, informing the Korean pilots that they had deviated from the right course and entered a prohibited military zone; and radio communication was established with the Koreans, who did not respond appropriately by tipping their wings.

The United States, in particular, attacked this point at the U.N., claiming that civil planes are not supplied with apparatus that could receive the military transmissions. But ICAO has refuted this argument, stating that the actions in this case were oral and visual, and maps depicting that particular area as prohibited to international flight had been circulated to all airlines flying the route — including KAL.

THE PRINCIPLE of "proportionality," on the other hand, shows that the relations between the Soviet Union and South Korea are inimical, and the district in which the plane lost its way is sensitive to the Soviet Union because the Japanese island of Hokkaido bristles with U.S. military bases. Moreover, Japan lays claim to some Russian islands, and a U.S. spy plane had been flying over the same district, which may have led to a mistaking of the target by the Soviets.

I do not intend to defend the U.S.S.R. Overall, the Soviet action was inhumane and barbaric. But Western jurisprudence has failed to establish precedents to keep tragedies of this type from occurring again. Thus it is the duty of the United States and other Western nations to help set up correct interpretations and pursuits of international law to settle such cases in the future.

Rhythm and blues vocalist Angela Bofill, set for Shryock

One of the most up-and-coming rhythm and blues vocalists, Angela Bofill, will be coming to Shryock Auditorium at 8 p.m. Thursday, Oct. 20.

Since her debut album, "Angie," in 1978, Bofill has been praised as versatile artist and her voice, a "phenomenal instrument."

Her fourth album "Too Tough" demonstrates her personal versatility: a woman losing herself in love on the ballad "Tonight I Give In," a skittish but captivated girl on the title cut, a romantic leading lady on a version of the Motown classic "Ain't Nothing Like The Real Thing," and a wide range of characters on such Bofill-composed songs as "Is This A Dream" and "Rainbow Inside My Heart."

The source of Bofill's music versatility comes in varying degrees from her heritage, her superior vocal ability and her music influences. She was raised in Harlem and listened to a wide variety of music, ranging from The Supremes to Bert Bacharach.

Bacharach was her first major influence as a composer. Later, Bofill, as a member of

Angela Bofill

New York's All-City Chorus, added classical works to her vocal repertoire, and met jazz and jazz-fusion singers and musicians who had a strong impact on her artistic development.

Bofill's performance in Shryock will be preceded by comedian Aaron Freeman. Tickets are $10 and $11 at the Student Center Central Ticket Office. The concert is sponsored by SPC Consorts and the Black Affairs Council.

Graduate student elected to chapter

Sollie Schramm, a graduate student in community development, has been elected president of the SIU-C chapter of Women in International Development, a national organization sponsored by the United States Agency for International Development. The organization is concerned with the role of women in the process of economic, social and cultural development.

'Woman's Work' exhibit shows wide range of art specialities

By Liz Myers
Staff Writer

In an exhibit now being presented at Vergette Gallery in the Allyn Building, the focus isn't just art, it's art created by women. "Woman's Work" is the second annual art show sponsored by Women's Studies.

At the opening reception on Sunday, many local and student women artists showed that women can have their own contribution to art.

"Anyone could have entered the show," said Gayle Otterson, coordinator of the exhibit, although this year's show has a feminist emphasis.

Last year's exhibit sponsored by Women's Studies focused on women as the subject matter, while this year it was geared toward "Women in the visual arts," Otterson said.

Otterson is now a graduate assistant to the assistant dean at the School of Technical Careers, but up to last summer she was a graduate assistant in Women's Studies. She planned the all-women show to complete her previous duties at the Women's Center.

Three jurors were selected by Otterson, two from the School of Art and one from Women's Studies, who selected 25 pieces by 17 artists from 55 pieces entered for the exhibit. Three artists received $20 merit awards.

Laurie Dunphy, one of the three merit award winners and a 1983 graduate of the Cinema and Photography Department, labeled her medium "photograms" or paper negatives.

Dunphy hand-colors black and white negatives and then transfers them to colored paper, which she said allows her to manipulate her materials better than with ordinary photography.

Commenting on the importance of such an exhibit Dunphy said, "This is a good opportunity for women to show their work collectively and to draw attention to the work that they are specifically involved in."

Another merit award went to the black and white photographs of Dianne Bobbitt, a junior in cinema and photography. Her trendy form of photography consisted of blurred images of faces and bodies.

"Most of my work is self portraits. That way I can make it as individual as possible," Bobbitt said.

Local artist Patricia Taylor added an elaborate three-dimensional touch to the photography-dominated show with a hand-dyed indigo quilt.

Taylor's work did not receive the recognition of a merit award, but that did not undermine the fact that her quilt was the biggest spectacle of the exhibit.

In what took over a month to make, Taylor dyed the quilt three times to get its unique deep blue coloring.

Taylor tie-dyed the fabric by machine, as opposed to the usual by hand method, she said. She also alternated the tensions on the sewing machine to give the quilt its puffy appearance.

Using challis material, the artist used indigo dye from plants and also painted on the piece with acrylics.

Because of the complexity and duration of time that it took to design and make the quilt, Taylor said she limits herself to producing only one a year.

"I wanted to see if my work had a particular appeal to an all-women audience," Taylor said, explaining that her pieces prior to "Woman's Work" had been displayed at only mixed-artist exhibits. This was her rationale for participating in the show.

The third merit award winner, graduate student Mary J. Avery, submitted spectacular paintings that depicted distorted images of women performing domestic tasks. Avery used oil-stick to produce her two winning paintings titled "Woman with White Chair" and "Woman with Iron."

Linda Gannon, coordinator of the Women's Studies program, said that women have been discriminated against in all areas, not just in the field of art.

"At Women's Studies we decided to have an annual art show to encourage women in their work," Gannon said. "Especially in the area of quilts and things, the trade art people don't consider part of what is typical in art."

Gannon's purpose for the show was not only to give the artists exposure, but "it's also important for others to see the way that women express themselves artistically," she said.

"Women's Work" is on display through Sept. 30 at the Vergette Gallery, located on the first floor of the Allyn Building.

Monty Python comedy writer to stage Shryock film program

Graham Chapman, a mainstay in the British comedy troupe Monty Python, will be visiting Shryock Auditorium at 8 p.m. Tuesday, Oct. 18. Chapman is both a writer and actor for "Monty Python's Flying Circus" television shows and movies. He played the leading role in "The Life of Brian," Python's latest film, "The Meaning of Life," was awarded the Special Jury Prize at the 1993 Cannes Film Festival.

During his career, Chapman has written for such humorists as David Frost, Marty Feldman, Peter Cook and Peter Sellers, as well as writing for Python and England's television series "Doctor in the House."

Chapman, a certified medical doctor, became hooked on performing comedy when he became a member of the Footlights Club at Cambridge University.

After vivisectioning groaning rabbits, and mastering anaesthesia, ear-nose-throat disorders and midwifery he was convinced that he did not want a career in medicine.

He recently released an autobiography, "A Liar's Autobiography," that reveals the darker side of his comic personality: battling alcoholism and coming out of the closet about his homosexuality.

The book also tells how he met fellow-Python John Cleese in the Cambridge Footlights Club and how these two got together with Michael Palin, Terry Jones, Eric Idle and American draft dodger Terry Gilliam. The group began with an idea for a series called "Owl-Stretching-Time," and ended up with "Monty Python's Flying Circus."

Chapman will spend the evening in Shryock showing Monty Python film clips and providing an opportunity for discussion about the comedy troupe.

Tickets are $5.50 and $7 at the Student Center Central Ticket Office. This event is sponsored by SPC Expressive Arts.

ISSC sets up program to collect unpaid loans

CHICAGO (AP) — One college graduate, certain that she could file for bankruptcy and escape repaying her student loan because she was broke, faced the judge in new designer jeans and was promptly told to pay up.

Another college graduate tried to avoid loan payments by providing a phony Social Security number on the loan application. But after the Illinois State Scholarship Commission discovered that the number belonged to an Illinois state trooper who drove for the attorney general, the student was easily persuaded to repay his debt.

The Commission also tracked down a dentist in default, and found he was receiving state money for some of his services.

The anecdotes go on and on, according to the commission, which has set up a tough collection program so the state won't have to reimburse lenders for millions of unpaid loans. The unpaid loans currently add up to more than $93 million.

Illinois' default rate is 3.63 percent, a bit higher than the national average of 3.23 percent, but it's more than twice as high as it was two years ago, said Shirley Daniel, the commission's assistant director of claims and collections.

Daniel said that people from all walks of life default on student loans, including ministers and judges.

"Lawyers are the most difficult because they try to shoot holes in all the loan documents they signed," she said.

But trade school graduates as a group have the highest default rates, she said.

Nevertheless, Daniel said, the vast majority of students do pay up.

Nationally, since the program began in 1965, $12.3 billion of the $35 billion loaned to 21 million students has been repaid; $4.1 billion owed by 2.4 million students is in the process of repayment, and $1.1 billion owed by 650,000 students is in default. The remainder doesn't have to be repaid until a later date.

In Illinois, $160.5 million of $1.9 billion loaned to 553,000 students has been repaid; about $594 million owed by 252,432 students is in various stages of repayment, and $93.5 million owed by 38,987 students is in default.

To handle more difficult cases, the ISSC has an assistant attorney general assigned to oversee the status of 11,509 defaults now in litigation.

The main problem facing the Commission, said Daniel, is tracking down loan defaulters. Once they are found, it usually isn't hard to convince them to pay, she said.

A law passed in 1980 gives the agency access to the most recent addresses of college graduates through Internal Revenue Service files. The agency also has access to state labor department computer tapes, which list all employed people in the state.

If a state's default rate goes above 5 percent, federal loan underwriting, which is at 100 percent otherwise, drops to 90 percent. If the default rate goes above 10 percent, federal underwriting drops again to 80 percent.

High school board approves budget

By Patrick Williams
Staff Writer

With the possibility of changes remaining, the Carbondale Community High School District 165 board approved a $5.9 million budget for the 1983-84 school year Thursday.

The board is still negotiating a teachers' contract that may add $150,000 to $200,000 in raises to education expenditures.

A mediator met with the teachers' and board's negotiating teams in an executive session following the meeting.

The budget includes $959,591 in site and construction funds, most of which has already been spent on the first phase of about $3 million worth of health and life-safety work, said district business manager Don Yost.

Being done mainly on the district's Central campus, the work includes improvements to bring the school up to code. Nearly $1 million of repairs are currently being completed in the first year of the three year project.

The board also accepted a bid from Centere Bank of St. Louis for $1.8 million in bonds to complete the second year's work.

In a public hearing on the budget before the meeting, Edward Sasse, 2004 Meadow Lane, raised questions about the size of two of the district's funds.

He said the bond and interest fund and the transportation fund are higher, as a percentage of expenditures, than the Illinois school code or common law allows.

Yost responded by saying that the bond fund, containing $297,318, was built up over the past several years to meet the possibility of a building to replace the Central campus, and the administration will recommend abating the tax levy for both funds next year.

He said that most of the excess had come from interest accumulated on the unused levy when building referenda were defeated, and the actual operating tax rate has been lowered over the past five years.

Expenditures for 1983-84 include: $3,680,960 for education; $649,581, building fund; $53,395, bond and interest; $320,395, transportation; $81,585, municipal retirement; $959,591 site and construction; $115,941, working cash.

Two robberies reported to police

Police were investigating two robberies reported over the weekend.

An undetermined amount of cash was taken in an armed robbery which occurred at 8:09 p.m. Sunday at the Clark Self Serve Station, 801 E. Walnut, Carbondale police said.

The gas station attendant said a black male entered the station, milled around for a couple of minutes, then pulled a knife with about a six-inch blade and demanded money.

The man fled the station on foot.

In a separate incident, three SIU-C students reported that 10 to 12 black males accosted them near The Newman Center, 715 S. Washington St. and stole one person's billboard early Saturday, according to SIU-C Security.

The strong arm robbery occurred at 3:32 a.m. The men, all residents in University Park, told police two of them were pushed and shoved and one was thrown to the ground.

The billboard, valued at $10, contained $2 cash.

KARATHA ROCK AND ROLL SEMINAR

"And do not participate in the unfruitful deeds of darkness, but instead even expose them." Ephesians 5:11

Mark Jaggard said a few years back, "It's only rock and roll." Sure, most young people like it and it is only just rock and roll... or is it? Vladimir Lenin said that the quickest way to destroy a society is through its music. Could it be that someone is trying to brainwash you through your stereo or the cassette recorder that's plugged into your car?

Find out through a fact-filled mini-seminar that includes tapes and concert footage. The truth just may be the most startling thing that's ever happened to you.

Donnell snares MVC honors

By Jim Lexa
Staff Writer

Winning defensive awards is starting to become a habit with the SIU-C football squad.

For the second time this season, cornerback Donnell Daniel won the Missouri Valley Conference Defensive Player of the Week Award, for his performance against Northern Iowa Saturday night.

This is the third time in four weeks that a Saluki cornerback has won the conference honor. Cornerback Terry Taylor also won the honor.

Against Northern Iowa, Daniel intercepted one pass and returned it 32 yards for a touchdown, broke up another pass attempt and made four tackles.

For the season, Daniel has three interceptions, with two being returned for touchdowns. Daniel has averaged 34.7 yards per interception return, while making 14 tackles and recovering one fumble.

"It's a nice honor," Daniel said. "It's a good feeling, but I accept the award for the team, not for myself. The pass rush by the front line gives the opposing quarterback little time to throw the ball."

Defensive backfield Coach Fred Manuel said he is glad not only for Daniel, but for the whole secondary.

"I'm happy for the kids," Manuel said. "They deserve it, they work hard."

Daniel, a senior, started last year for the Salukis and had four interceptions. He said he has improved on his man-to-man coverage this season, and after starting last year, he has become more mature on the field.

we can have back-to-back good weekends," Hunter said. "After the match with Texas, we just didn't regain ourselves, we couldn't get on a roll."

"It's been disappointing. It hasn't been a lost or wasted weekend, but it has been a disappointment."

Uppermost on the coach's mind will be avenging the loss to Texas, when the Salukis travel to the Texas-Arlington classic in three weeks.

"I'm really pleased that we can face Arlington again," she said. "If we had won that match, we would've been playing with the top eight teams."

The Salukis' nemesis was again the serving and passing game, according to Hunter.

"Serving and passing was our biggest problem," Hunter said. "We don't make the other team have to handle our serve, we go back and miss it for them."

"We're also still not getting consistent setting. We need it on a regular basis. That middle link is just not coming off consistently. Sometimes it works well, sometimes it's rugged."

"That's related to experience and confidence. We've got a setter. We just need to work with her."

take on Chris Capps, another transfer from Anderson Junior College, at No. 6.

At doubles, Wall will play Fogarty and Capps at No. 1, Cobbing and Reynolds at No. 2, and Casanova and Antonio Campana, from Chile, at No. 3.

"We're a lot deeper at four, five and six than we were last year," Wall said. "I think we're going to give the Salukis a good

Hunter was referring to sophomore setter Lisa Cummings, who possesses the basic tools necessary for the position but was not overwhelmed with game time her freshman season.

According to Hunter, the altitude at BYU also figured into her team's sluggishness.

"The altitude had a definite effect," she said. "Especially for someone like Lisa who has to do so much running. It doesn't help when she has to chase bad passes, too."

Hunter said the competition at the Preview was actually not as tough as at the Saluki Invitational last weekend.

"Part of the time, we weren't challenged to the hilt as we were last weekend," she said.

"Within our pool, some of the teams' styles were actually a bit unorthodox, and we just didn't show the ability to adapt."

The tournament dropped the Salukis' record to 5-9, but Hunter said she's not worried yet.

"Those weren't even the caliber of teams we played in our own tournament," she said.

"We just had a bad weekend. Sometimes you just can't put it all together."

show."

LeFevre said freshman Lars Nilsson is still doubtful for Tuesday's match. Nilsson is suffering from a sore arm.

"It's up to Lars whether he can play or not," LeFevre said. "If he's ready, we may change the lineup a little."

The Salukis beat the Indians twice last year.

Time trial series finished

A face familiar to SIU-C cycling won the final 10-mile time trial sponsored by the Phoenix Cycling Club.

Dan Casebeer, a contender for the U.S. Olympic team, took the overall title, covering the course in 21:57 to break a record set last week. Casebeer topped the old mark by one minute.

In the race for unlicensed men, Jim McDowell took first in 27:17, while John Martinko claimed the title for veterans. Martinko clocked in at 26:56.

The overall winner of the series in the category of licensed men was Casebeer. Carl Hu claimed the crown for unlicensed men with a time of 25:32. Mike Jenkins was the winner for the veteran group by virtue of his 24:06 mark. For the women, Penny Avgeranos was first with a 28:13.

Awards for the series winners will be given away at the club's meeting at 7 p.m. Thursday, in Activity Room A of the Student Center. Prizes will also be awarded for winners of the Phoenix race series.

"They (Murray State) are a new team, and they're pretty young. We played really well together, and we controlled the ball well for how many new people we had out there."

Erickson said one reason the rookies played so much was the absence of three SIU-C veterans.

Barb Cavoto, the club's president, was sidelined with a back injury but should be back for next week's match, Erickson said. Anita Coleman, who came up with three tries in last week's doubleheader with Iowa City and Illinois, is out with ligament damage.

Erickson said the Murray

Cyclist breaks record

By Sherry Chisenhall
Sports Editor

Cyclist Dan Casebeer said he wanted to show that he's still got it.

That's exactly what he did a week ago when he broke a national record for distance traveled in an hour.

The former SIU-C student cruised 27.65 miles on a velodrome track in Indianapolis to outdate the old record by 1.44 miles.

"That's quite a difference in distance," Casebeer said. "It's like winning a race by that much, or being three minutes ahead of the next rider."

Casebeer said his biggest problem was concentration.

"It's really intense to do something for an hour," he said. "Concentrating for that long was the hardest thing. I was riding 26-second laps, which can get you dizzy. You just keep going around and around, and it can get boring. You need good concentration, because one slip and you're gone, you crash."

"Breaking the record shows that I can do something really good. It shows that I'm a super-good time trialist and that I still have the speed and stamina."

"My body is still a little sore, though. I'd like to do it again, next year - after I've forgotten what it feels like."

If Casebeer felt he needed to prove something, it would be a direct result of his disappointing finish in the Pan American Games trials.

His event is the team time trial, a 62-mile race for a four-man team. Casebeer is one of the top time trialists in the country and was expected to qualify for the Pan Ams.

In the trials, though, he rode a specially-designed bike that broke during the race.

"In warm-up the night before I crashed," he said.

"Physiologically that's hard to come back from. It was bad enough that I had hay fever really, then the bike broke and I had to switch bikes in the middle of the race."

"It was basically a rush job on the bike. It just wasn't put together properly. It was disappointing, because I felt I had been riding well and I was feeling good."

To pour salt into the wound, the U.S. cycling team went to the Pan Ams and cleaned up, winning the gold in every race.

Casebeer said he came back to Carbondale for a few days before going to a big race in Wisconsin, in which he beat most of the men who had beaten him the week before.

"I didn't really do that bad at the Pan Am trials," he said. "I missed my first ride because the bike fell apart and I had to wait until the next ride. Then it got windy and the bike fell apart again and I had to switch in the middle of the race. It's no wonder I lost."

During the summer Casebeer finished ninth of 175 riders in the Lowenbrau Series and didn't even compete in three of the races.

Next on his agenda may be a tour with the national team in South America. He said he is awaiting word and should be notified within the next few weeks if he'll make the tour.

Still topping the cyclist's list of goals are the Olympic trials in June. Casebeer said he expects to get an invitation to ride in the trial.

"I'm still optimistic, but it will be a really hard road. I need to stay in my best shape, go to the trials, and kill everybody. Seriously, I can just do my best and try to reach my goal."

Spikers trounced at BYU tournament

By Sherry Chisenhall

The Brigham Young University Preview was far from what women's volleyball Coach Debbie Hunter expected. Twice as far, to be exact.

Hunter's team set its goal as placing in the top eight, but the Salukis escaped from the tournament clutching only a 16th-place finish of 24 teams.

SIU-C returned from the mountains with a 2-5 record, but one of the wins isn't recognized by the NCAA. The Salukis dropped Snow College 15-9, 15-13, but the match isn't included in the team's win-loss record because Snow is a junior college.

Hunter's club opened the tournament Thursday with a win over the University of San Francisco, but that was as far as the team's winning streak went. Later in the afternoon the Salukis were set back by Texas Arlington.

The contest with Arlington was the pivotal match that took SIU-C out of top-eight contention. After winning the first game 15-4, the Salukis dropped a pair of games 8-15 in best-of-three pool play to knock themselves out of the championship bracket.

The coach said her team was sluggish in the match didn't put forth much effort. According to Hunter, "It's a loss that doesn't feel too good."

Thursday evening Hunter's team was battered by 13th-ranked Brigham Young. The Cougars went on to defeat Penn State to take the crown of the Preview.

Hunter's team still found no breathing space. After knocking off Snow College, SIU-C lost to Montana State (15-13, 3-15, 11-15), Utah State (13-15, 12-15) and U.S. International (15-17, 6-15).

Hunter said she was disappointed in the finish, especially since the team claimed the title of its own invitational only one week ago.

"My final assessment would be that evidently we're not in the stage of development that See BYU, Page 15

Rugby Club blasts Murray State 40-0

By Sherry Chisenhall

It definitely wasn't the challenge of the century Saturday when the SIU-C women's Rugby Club pummeled Murray State on the rugby pitch behind Abe Martin field.

Several SIU-C rookies saw action in the match, in which the Saluki squad clubbed hapless MSU 40-0. SIU-C wasted no time getting the ball rolling, opening up with three quick tries, by Britt Van Buskirk, Renee Flottman and Sandy Martin.

SIU-C's defense wasn't idle, keeping MSU pinned against its endline for the entire first half.

The name of the game for SIU-C was ball control. The Saluki contingent owned the running game, dominating the rucks, mauls and scrums.

After Maria Erickson added a try and made good on two conversions, SIU-C left the field at halftime with a comfortable 20-0 lead.

The Saluki club blew the lead further open in the second half, trekking across the pitch at will in the apparent absence of a Murray State defense. Amy Dunning claimed the first score of the half, breaking away from the pack and downing the ball to start the deluge.

Before the final whistle could rescue Murray State, SIU-C's Laura Michalek touched the ball down for four points, while Erickson notched her second try and added two more conversion kicks.

Erickson, the team's spokesperson, said SIU-C hadn't expected to romp so easily.

"We expected to win," she said. "Maybe not by that much, though. We wanted to use the game to break in new people, because we have eight rookies."

Gridders jump three notches in NCAA poll

By Jim Lexa
Staff Writer

After a 52-9 victory over the Northern Iowa Panthers, the Salukis have found it pays to win big.

SIU-C jumped three notches to a No. 5 ranking in the NCAA I-AA football poll.

The Salukis, who last week climbed into the I-AA top 10 for the first time in their history, are 4-0 and off to their best start since the 1970 squad won its first six games, only to finish at 6-3 on the season.

Last year, the Salukis went 3-0 and stumbled after losing a last-second contest to the Arkansas State Indians, 35-30. The Salukis then lost their next three games before recovering and winning three of their last four to finish at 6-5 for the season.

Arkansas State is the next squad on the Salukis schedule, and the Salukis aren't about to forget who started them onto their four-game losing streak.

"We had a fine football team last year, there's no doubt about it," Coach Rey Dempsey said in his Saturday post-game radio show. "In fact, we played a great game against Arkansas State and just came out short in the last four seconds."

Dempsey said he thinks the loss to Arkansas State changed the season for his squad.

"I think we would've went 8-3 last year and got in the playoffs if they hadn't beaten us," Dempsey said. "It isn't revenge that we want, they just put us in the skids."

Defensive backfield Coach Fred Manuel echoed Dempsey's sentiments.

"That ballgame's important because if we win, we're 5-0," Manuel said. "In order for us to make it into the playoffs, we need to win against Arkansas State."

Arkansas State is different from the previous four Saluki opponents, Manuel said, because the Indians are a running team, whereas the other teams were passing teams and this will force the Salukis to change their defensive play.

Netters to face SEMO

The SIU-C men's tennis team will try to make it two wins in a row when they play host to Southeast Missouri State at the University tennis courts at 3 p.m. Tuesday.

The Salukis beat the University of Evansville Friday 9-1 in what Saluki Coach Dick LeFevre described as, "the right way to start off the season."

LeFevre said he has a tentative lineup for Tuesday's match but won't know for sure until matchtime. This lineup was effective against the Aces, with Per Wadmark at No. 1 singles, Rollie Olinquino at No. 2, Gabriel Coch at No. 3, Chris Visconti at No. 4, Paul Rasch at

No. 5, and Roeland deKort at No. 6. Coch was the only Saluki downed against the Aces.

At doubles, Wadmark and Olinquino are at No. 1, Coch and Visconti at No. 2, and Rasch and deKort at No. 3. They all won on Friday, too.

The Southeast Missouri tennis team, under new Coach Peter Wall, have a bunch of new faces on its squad. Wall, who replaced Leo Vorwerk in June, was graduate assistant coach in 1981 when the Indians finished eighth nationally in the NCAA Division II.

According to Wall, the Indians will play Tony Fogarty at No. 1 against Wadmark. Fogarty, a junior, is a transfer from Anderson Junior College in Anderson, S.C. He played No. 3 singles with Anderson last year, which placed eighth in the country in the NCAA junior college division.

The Indians will play sophomore Richard Cobbing from England at No. 2 against Olinquino. Cobbing was ineligible to play last year.

A St. Louis native, Bob Casanova, will play at No. 3 against Coch. Coach Wall will start junior Scott Reynolds, from Cape Girardeau, at No. 4 against Visconti. Reynolds sat out last year for the Indians.

At No. 5, the Indians will play Mike Boone, a sophomore, who also didn't play last year.

Saluki freshman Roeland deKort, who easily won his first collegiate match against Pat Hyman Friday, 6-2, 6-3, will
